Service Description

School for Parents is a centre that provides a range of services to help babies and children with mobility and communication problems to develop the skills they need to thrive and achieve their potential. Our work encourages the development of motor, sensory and self-help skills such as sitting; standing; touching; listening; looking; eating and playing. Our work is inspired by the principles and practices of Conductive Education, developed at the Peto Institute in Hungary. This approach places the parent firmly at the forefront of their child's education, encouraging the child's personality to develop alongside their mother or father. The age range of children attending our service is between 6 months to 11 years of age and groups are conducted with parents present thus ensuring a collaborative and partnership working approach.

School for Parents is committed to safeguarding and promoting the welfare of children and young people and expects all staff and volunteers to share this commitment.
